Enabling and mobilizing private capital through PPPs

The current market poses significant challenges to the successful implementation of Public-Private Partnerships (PPPs). Key issues include elevated risk perceptions, geopolitical tensions, market uncertainties, rising capital costs, and heightened competition for private finance.

Join us for a discussion on how our clients are navigating this rapidly evolving landscape. We will explore how the private sector assesses market conditions and the essential prerequisites for successful partnerships. Additionally, we will showcase selected examples of successful operations that have enabled and mobilized private capital for our clients. Finally, we will share existing knowledge resources that can help PPPs professionals to have a better understanding the complexities of PPPs and contribute to creating more robust and successful PPPs.
